NEWS FROM THE COUNTRY DENBIGH.

About 9 o'clock on last Thursday evening, the house of James Grant on lot 16, in the 7th, concession of Denbigh, was observed to be on fire by some of the neighbors, who hastened to the scene of the accident. They could see no one around the place, but to their intense horror they could see what appeared to them the partly consumed body of a person standing upright with uplifted arms, near one corner of the burning building, enveloped by the roaring flames. Owing to the intense heat the efforts made by these present to rescue the remains were unsuccessful until the building collapsed, and the fire subsided somewhat when a few charred remains of two human beings were got out, which were at first supposed to belong to Mr. and Mrs. Grant. After midnight however Mr. Grant and his wife, who had been away to attend a religious meeting held in the Snider settlement, arrived at their now desolate home, and it became known that the victims of the terrible calamity were two youths, nephews of Mrs. Grant, who had been the only occupants of the house that evening. Geo. Hughes, eldest son of the late William Hughes, and stepson of Fred Ball, of Vennachar, about 15 years of age, and John Gregg, eldest son of Alexander Gregg, of Vennachar, 13 years of age. The parents and friends of both promising youths who met such an untimely end, are nearly distracted with grief. The remains found were interred Sunday afternoon in the Vennachar cemetery. It will probably never be known for certain how the fire originated. Grant lost all the contents of the house which was not insured and he may have to give up the place again which he had only lately bought from John Flake, who came so near getting killed a few weeks ago by the running away of his horses, and whose injuries proved to be far more serious than reported at the time, though there are now good prospects of his ultimate recovery, if no further complications set in.

The German Lutheran congregation of this place have been the fortunate recipient of a beautiful Chandelier, which was presented to them by the Ladies Society in connection with St. Peter's Lutheran church, of Berlin, Ont., and their pastor, Rev. R. Von Pirch. The present is very much appreciated, as the otherwise very nice and well equipped church has heretofore been rather inefficiently lighted.

A S. S. Concert will be held at the Methodist church on Saturday, the 22nd inst., for which a very good and entertaining programme is being prepared.

BETHANY.

The funeral services of the late Mr. Martin Barnhart were conducted in Bethany church last Monday by the pastor Rev. H. I. Allen and Rev. David Wilson. There was a large attendance. An accident befel the hearse, one of the wheels became heated, so the body had to be taken by another conveyance.

The trustees have repaired the sheds making them very comfortable for the monster tea-meeting on Christmas night. I hear the Mandolin Glee Club will furnish some music and there are other great preparations going on and we are determined to make this the tea-meeting of the season, so young men secure your girl and come along.

LITTLE CREEK.

Our Christmas Entertainment in Anderson's church was a fine success, the presents were valuable and profitable, every scholar received one and some more, the Superintendent Mr. John M. Joyce received a beautiful shaving outfit in an elegant box, Mr. Frank Wilson received a gold headed cane as teacher of the bible class. Mrs. Rev. H. I. Allen received a beautiful gift and a fine sum of money as a token of esteem. The Rev. D. O. Crossly gave a fine address and sang and he has kindly promised to come back on New Year's night and delight us all again. Mr. N. B. Miller and Miss Davenport gave good readings and many others who rendered very interesting addresses and songs, but we are all looking forward to the big oyster supper on New Year's night in the church. Mr. M. Madole is coming to boss the affair and several others from Napanee to sing and speak. I heard one of the committee say they were sparing no pains to make this the best oyster supper ever given here.

TOWN COUNCIL.

(COUNCIL CHAMBER
Dec. 17th, 1894.)

Council met in regular session Mayor Stevens in the chair, present Carson, Symington, Potter, McAlister, Lowry, Paul, Ward, Leonard.

Minutes of last regular and adjourned meeting read and adopted.

A communication from Chas. M. Vanalstine applying for the situation of caretaker of the new fire alarm was ordered filed.

Robert Norris appeared before the council re taxes on lots which he had purchased from the town. On motion the matter was referred to the Finance committee to report.

Mr. Wagar appeared before the council stating that he was assessed for a dog, while he had no dog. Referred to the Finance committee to report.

Mr. Sedore was present and asked the council for some assistance as he had broke his arm while coming out of the post office a few days ago and was unable to do any work. His application and the solicitation of Mr. Parks for aid were both referred to the Poor and Sanitary committee with power to act.

The report of the Finance committee was read and adopted.

The chairman of the Finance committee presented the detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the current year which the law requires to be gotten out on the 15th of Dec of each year. It was read and on motion referred to the Finance committee to complete and have it printed.

The reports of the Street, and Fire, Water and Light committees were read and adopted.

Moved by McAlister and Leonard that the tender of the Bell Telephone Co. for a new fire alarm, $673, be accepted, providing they enter into a contract prepared by the town solicitor and submit it to the council.

After considerable discussion in which Messrs. Carson and Symington expressed themselves of the opinion that the tender was altogether too high, and Mr. Symington thought the town would be entirely at the mercy of the Bell Telephone Co. if the council allowed them to erect the wires on their poles as proposed in the tender, it was moved in amendment by Symington and Carson that we do not accept the tender of the Bell Telephone Co., but allow the present arrangements to run until the 15th of May and then terminate it.

Mr. McAlister said he was of the same opinion as Messrs. Carson and Symington, about the tender being too high, until he started out to make enquiries and he was now of the opinion that the tender was a reasonable one.

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Ward and Lowry that the question of putting in a new fire alarm system be deferred to the next regular meeting when the draft agreement, mutually agreeable to the town solicitor and the Bell Telephone Co., will be presented to the council for their approval. Carried.

The reports of the Market, Town Property, Poor and Sanitary and Police committees were read and adopted.

The council decided not to give the poor the usual Christmas dinner this year but instead an extra $50 was ordered to be placed in the hands of the chairman of the Poor and Sanitary Committee to be used at his discretion.

A number of accounts were ordered to be paid or referred to the different committees.

The Finance committee was instructed to make arrangements to have the present fire alarm system continued until the council had arrived at some conclusion in regard to the new one.

Council adjourned.

How to get a "Sunlight" Picture.

Send 25 "Sunlight" Soap wrappers (wrap per bearing the words "Why Does a Woman Look Old Sooner Than a Man.") to Lever Bros., Ltd., Scott St., Toronto, and you will receive by post a pretty picture, free from advertising, and well worth framing. This an easy way to decorate your home. The soap is the best in the market, and it will only cost to postage to send in the wrappers, if you leave the ends open. Write your address carefully.

a description. To begin with, one window displays to advantage a representation of the "Ferris Wheel," resplendent in silk handkerchiefs and ribbons. The doll passengers look out from the silk covered cabs, not over the Moorish Palace, Streets of Cairo, and other sights of dear old Midway, but with expressionless glass eyes see only the mud and bustle of Main St., Picton.

The next window, or companion window, as they are both in the same establishment, contains a wonderful vessel, cunningly fashioned of white linen and curtain poles. We pass on to a gent's furnishing store. Here sits old St. Nick, or some other venerable man, (certainly not a temperance advocate, as the jug with corn-cob stopper shows too plainly.) A strange old-fashioned cutter he sits in and yet it bears a placard announcing, "The best cutter in town," this man has come all the way from Herkimer, N. Y., just think!

Another window has the "New Picton Post-Office," the office that has purchased two elections. The myth that has been painted in such bright, glowing colors. Well, we are thankful for small favours, in this county and are glad that we can have even representation of it, at least.

The last window I shall describe, and to my mind, the best, presents an old fire place. It is certainly the most artistic. It is well represented by means of a framework covered with red print, the bricks outlined with white tape, behind which hangs a black cloth forming the blackened back. Suspended from the arch is an old pot, beneath it on the brick floor is the hickory wood ready for lighting. On the mantel stands an old clock, two candlesticks, some old books, tray and snuffers. The stockings are hanging ready for Santer, The tongs and shovel stand in readiness, even the old iron dogs are in their places, the hearth rug too. Altogether it forms a pleasing picture of domestic life, carrying us back to the days of our grandmothers and the early settlers of Canada. These last two mentioned adorn the front of the elegant store of Jamieson Bros.

BATH.

The season's festivities in this vicinity have begun with more than usual activity. Already the various secret orders around us are treating themselves to feasts of reason both temporal and spiritual.

On Wednesday evening last a free lecture was delivered in the town hall by J. Millen Esq. P. G. M. W. G. O. after which the members of the A. O. U. W. partook of a sumptuous repast at the Bayview House, nothing could exceed the deliciousness of the viands served, and the efforts made in all directions for the comfort of the guests, after all there was an omission that never ought to occur, I refer to the absence of the ladies, it does seem that workmen sometimes forget that working women and daughters have a right to be present at all the social gatherings of fathers and brothers to supply that enchantment that no well regulated society can afford to ignore. May the next social gathering be graced by their presence. But to resume as Samantha says the evening entertainment came to a close by the master of the lodge, (A. McLaugherty) requesting all the members to appear at church on the 16th. On Sunday afternoon a large congregation took part in the services at the Methodist Church. According to the prearranged plan the A. O. U. W. marched to the church in a body, making an imposing appearance, and listening with rapt attention to the very eloquent discourse delivered by the Rev. Dr. Tucker, afterwards showing their appreciation by donating a handsome collection.

Wishing all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year we are able to say the same.

HAWLEY.

Mr. Robert Moore, of Tamworth, spent Sunday with his brother James Moore of this place.

Quite a number of our young people attended the Xmas Tree at Andersons.

Mr. Chester Snider had the misfortune to have a sick horse, on Monday he drove it to his work the same as usual and after an hour or two it became very sick. Dr. Meng was called for and after a thorough examination he pronounced it indigestion it is still improving.

It is our sad duty to chronicle the death of our esteemed neighbor and friend in the person of Mrs. Edley Brown which sad event occurred at her home on the 16th, a paralytic stroke being the cause of her sudden and unexpected demise. Deceased was an exemplary lady, being a firm and consistent member of the Methodist church for thirty years, she was noted as an example of piety. She leaves behind her an aged and afflicted husband and five children to mourn the loss of a loving mother and faithful companion, may the arms of the divine master shield the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

From every earthly pain and care That Mother has gone to rest, She's left her friends,

To sigh and mourn; She sleeps on Jesus' breast.

A CHAPTER ON THE YANKEE.

(Special Correspondence of The Express.)

Providence, Dec. 5:—There is very good sleighing in the city just this minute; tomorrow it may have vanished. The snow never stays very long at a time, but when it does manage to resist the sun for a few days everyone who possesses a sleigh and a horse takes advantage of the too rare occasion. It is a funny sight to see the antique cutters and scows that are trotted out. Seldom will you see a new one for as whole winters pass sometimes without much snow, it would be ruinous to keep up with the latest Canadian and Russian styles. But the Yankee is not a bashful mortal and he laughs as heartily in his old warped cutter when he sails by another fellow on Broadway, after a dash, as if he were seated in a Portland in the back of which you could see well enough to shave and whose carved dash boasted a picture in gold leaf of Columbus discovering the New World. It is not the cutter the Yankee minds, but the horse. That must be a trotter or it is no use and the way they get the speed out of some ricketty looking nags is surprising. But the most ludicrous of all the vehicles produced during a spell of sleighing are those of the aristocracy. No one but a caricaturist could describe their wonderful sleighs, but they all resemble each other in one particular, viz., in the possession of a very high front seat where you always see a footman at the driver's side, both in livery, both pathetically solemn, both in fur capes, generally of monkey skin, and tall fur caps resembling

THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

The Friggle "Superior Girl" and the Girl Who Doesn't "Frivol."

Don't you dislike the superior young woman? Nothing suits her, says The New York Advertiser. She doesn't go to the theatre unless she can see something really improving, and so far as can be discovered she finds "Camille" and "La Tosca" and likes the only real improving things. If she goes out for a walk with you she refuses to look into the shop windows at the pretty things. "It's so vulgar," she tells you. She dislikes babies and dogs, and calls you frivolous because—once in a while—you read "The Duchess." The superior young woman is an incentive to sin, for she makes everybody hate her. She won't eat cream candies for fear of spoiling her teeth, and, though she loves corn and boiled onions, she stares at you if you venture to indulge in such vulgarities. Indeed, the only time when she is at all bearable is when she is—in a still sort of way—the chief personage at a funeral.

Happy the girl who can "frivol" and look at life without analyzing every motion. Probing into the "ism" of a shoestring may indicate great mental qualification for some career beyond joy of living, but, according to The Boston Herald, it is stupid to say that a human creature enjoys the process. Overeducation is a boomerang that is going to hit back when it gets good and ready. Be sure this new woman who fairly emancipates herself by wresting man's privileges from him, who assumes all his duties and so many of his prerogatives and who flips her fingers at the world, if the world opens big eyes at her performances, is the woman who kills love. Murder in the first degree! For she has deliberately concocted the taking off of poor, confiding little Eros. This new woman is a thousand times more unlovely than the strong-minded female of twenty-five or thirty years ago. She is so desperately "knowing" is one reason, and she is so "stuck on" herself for another. But what's the use of talking? The creature is a fact, and only time can change the soil into something else.

WEALTH GOING TO WOMEN.

The Gentler Sex Becoming More Numerous as Stockholders in Eastern Factories.

In a large number of manufacturing concerns in Massachusetts, the affairs of which are covered by the latest report of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics, there were 43,803 partners or stockholders in 1891, against 42,735 in 1892. The number of males included in the total for the latter year was greater, however, than that which was covered by the larger figures for 1893. There were 27,325 male partners or stockholders in 1892, and 27,211 in 1893. On the other hand, the number of women who had an interest in the manufacturing concerns dealt with by the report was 16,592 in 1893 against 15,410 in the year preceding. The partners or shareholders were 63.91 per cent. males in 1892 and 27.56 per cent. females. In 1893 the proportions were 28.38 per cent. of females and 62.12 per cent. of males. The change thus shown to have taken place in one year is regarded by The Cleveland Plain Dealer as a curious hint of the tendency of the times to place more and more of the property of the world, and especially of the United States, in the possession of women. It looks as if the weaker sex which must hold its goods and chattels in a sense by virtue of the forbearance of the stronger were destined to become this moneyed part of the human family.

correspondents have explored and written up for The Globe almost every place of interest in Canada. Its news service is the fullest and most complete in the Dominion, while it shows its loyalty in a practical way by giving employment to talented Canadian writers, and just at present that versatile genius, The Khan, brightens its pages with several columns every Saturday. Last Saturday The Globe eclipsed itself by issuing a 36 page Christmas number, that for general typographical beauty and literary merit has never been excelled by any newspaper in Canada.

That the old love is stronger in the average Tory Patron than the new was strikingly illustrated by a little incident that occurred a few weeks ago. J. D. Evans, reeve of Etobicoke, West York, was nominated by the Patrons to contest the riding against Clarke Wallace, Controller of Customs. Subsequently Mr. Evans declined the nomination, and in doing so, said, "After having supported Mr. Wallace in all his previous contests I think it would be dishonorable for me to oppose him without better reasons than I now have." Perhaps the fact that Mr. Evans' son was given a position in the custom's department, presided over by Mr. Wallace, may not have had any bearing on Mr. Evans' sudden change from a red hot Patron stump orator to a warm supporter of N. Clarke Wallace and the N. P. But we are all entitled to our own opinions, and our opinion, in view of these facts, is that it would indeed be very dishonorable for Mr. Evans to oppose Mr. Wallace.

THE KINGSTON election petition and cross petition came up for trial on Monday and resulted, as was generally predicted, in the unseating of Dr. Smythe. The petitioners had no desire to prove personal bribery and therefore took it upon themselves to prove bribery by agents. It was only found necessary to call six witnesses when the counsel for Dr. Smythe decided to throw up the sponge and also to drop the cross petition against Mr. Harty. Some pretty tall swearing was engendered by the trial and the means devised by the Kingston Tory bosses to secure that now somewhat famous majority of one for Dr. Smythe makes interesting reading. In the West Algonia election petition at Osgoode Hall the charges were gone into sufficiently to show that there had been illegal practices. The election was declared void and the seat vacant. This makes two Tory heads that have already fallen into the basket, and there is not the slightest doubt but that these constituencies will return supporters of the Mowat Government in the bye-elections.

FROM PRINTER'S DEVIL to Premier may not be very analogous, but from this lowly position Hon. Mackenzie Bowell has by slow gradations attained the Premiership of Canada. While it must be admitted that among his late colleagues there are several much abler men, we doubt if there is one who would be more acceptable as a whole than the one on whose shoulders has fallen the task of forming a government. Premier Bowell is in his seventy-first year and is an honest up-to-date gentleman, who has kept himself clear of the boozing and corruption which characterized the course of a number of his colleagues in the past. He is a strong Orangeman, having been for eight years Grand Master of the Order in Canada, and in 1876 elected as President of the Triennial Council of Orangeism of the world and a B. I. A. S. It has been said of him that he is the only member of the late Cabinet who conscientiously believes in protection and the N. P. From present indications his tenure of office promises to be a brief one. He those worn by the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery which one sees in the picture books. Far back behind these two austerities, ever so far back, for the sleigh is as long waisted as a Vassar girl, sit the lady and her companion, dreamily contemplative, wholly emotionless and without the snap in expression which one expects the snow to bring. You seldom see the men in these sleighs; they know too much for that. The horses are always well fed, short tailed and high spirited. They step as daintily upon the white snow as if it were soiling their aristocratic hoofs and when an expressman goes by, a cow bell clanging from his horse's collar, they leap up in the air as if they sought to fly from such plebeian company. They never run away for that would be too sensational and laborious. At each side of the driver's high seat can generally be seen two tall yellow plumes, much like inverted dusters, such as one sees in Jewelers' stores.

This all goes to show that as a common every day fellow the Yankee is in his glory and consequently at his best, but as an aristocrat he is ludicrous and pitiable, Cold blooded hauteur does not sit well upon his manly brow and instead of looking like Lord Chesterfield he resembles a stuffed fool. But for all the contempt which it inspires, a class, apeing blue bloodedness, is rapidly growing in this country and enmeshing all the weaker minds among the people of great wealth. So one day we may expect to see not only the ridiculous peacockism of a self appointed aristocracy but that debauchery of manhood, flunkiesism.

Providence is a gay city during the Christmas Holidays. The stores are filled with attractive things, tempting the buyer but your professional shopper easily withstands the temptation. There are usually 50 onlookers to one purchaser and the life of the shopkeeper is not always a happy one. The ladies still continue to wear jackets with the most tremendous shoulder puffs. I went down street yesterday behind two girls who actually took up the whole sidewalk so voluminous were the sleeves. At the theatre, if your seat happens to be between two females, you find yourself in a valley whose sides are soft silk. The ladies like the style and vie with each other in the harmless amusement of seeing which can have the largest and fluffiest sleeves. When the craze is over they can make a roomy robe of one of the sleeves and a tea gown of the other, so there will be nothing lost.

Prof. Rhys. Davids, of London, has been giving a course of public lectures on Buddhism at Brown's University the last two weeks and they have been largely attended. Everybody of a literary turn is in consequence talking about Gantama, Karma, reincarnation, the wheel of life and the Nirvana. Prof. Davids, who is the greatest living authority on the Pali language, the one in which the Buddhist bible is written, says that Gantama Buddha was the most scholarly of all the teachers of mankind and that western thought will be greatly influenced by his wisdom and philosophy when the treasures of his lore are accessible to mankind. It is peculiar how this religion, which we learned at school was idol worship, is spreading over the world among scholars and thoughtful people. It may only be a fad but fads have before now monopolized thought for ages.

There are not so many poor in the city as at this time last year. In fact times are decidedly improved. There is a greater confidence manifested by business men and it is hoped that the good money making days will return. Through THE EXPRESS, I wish all the friend in Canada, who still remember me, A Merry Christmas.

FRED. W. SHIBLEY.

A novel and useful departure is to be noted in the construction of heating gas burners of the Bunsen type, the new feature consisting in having outside of and surrounding the flame a metal tube with air-receiving openings on its under surface, and air-discharging apertures in its upper portion, impinged by the flame, thus effecting more perfect combustion and producing an intense heat. On the gas supply tube, fitted in a suitable base, is a conical nozzle, surrounded by the chambered lower end of a mixing tube near the bottom of which are air apertures, while in its upper end is inserted the threaded portion of the burner; the latter consists of a casting, with lateral apertures through which the gas issues, and with lugs at short intervals, the top of the casting being closed by a disk which rests upon the lugs and is secured in place by screws. The surrounding air supply tube is supported by right-angled rods, and may be of oval, circular or triangular section, the lower air-receiving openings being larger than the discharge apparatus. Thus the flame, impinging upon the hollow ring or tube, raises it to a high temperature, and correspondingly heats the air discharged therefrom to mingle with the gas of the flame.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

A series of exhaustive experiments, as published in the engineering journals, has been made to determine the value of different fuels as compared with crude petroleum, and the following results are recorded: Coke that has about 94 per cent. of carbon is found to contain 13,640 heat units, requires nearly eleven pounds of air for complete combustion, the rise in temperature being 4,877 degrees, F., and the maximum amount of water that it will evaporate is 14.15 pounds for each pound of coke. very good grade of bituminous coal, containing more than 71 per cent. of carbon, contains 14,143 heat units, requires 11 pounds of air for complete combustion, the rise in temperature is 4,830 degrees, F., and the maximum amount of water evaporated nearly 15 to 1—this, however, being an exceptional one. Illuminating gas, of 61 per cent. carbon, contains 20,800 heat units, requiring nearly sixteen pounds of air for the combustion of each pound of gas, the rise in temperature is 4,567 degrees, and each pound of it will evaporate more than twenty-one pounds of water. Oak wood when kiln dried, contains about 50 per cent. of carbon, has 7,713 heat units per pound of wood, requiring six times its own weight of air for its combustion giving a rise in temperature of 4,287 degrees, and each pound of it will evaporate eight pounds of water. Wet and green sawdust, containing 45 per cent. of wood and 55 per cent. of moisture, develops 2,916 heat units, giving a rise in temperature of 2,245 degrees, and will evaporate four pounds of water for each pound of wood in the fuel, though for each pound as it stands—wet and dry together—it is much less.

CREMATION SCENES IN INDIA.

Bodies Rising to a Sitting Posture While Lying on an Open Fire.

In traveling through India large bonfires are frequently to be seen in secluded spots on the outskirts of cities, surrounded by apparently merry-making circles of natives. The scenes which greet the observer of such are often grand and impressive. Such was the one which it was the good fortune of a writer for The Boston Transcript to witness. One afternoon, while wandering through the suburbs of Bombay to escape for a while the bustle and confusion of this magnificent city of temples and palaces, he discovered through the trees in the distance the familiar bonfire. Being an American, with the bump of curiosity strongly developed, an irresistible desire to approach this particular spot predominated. The scene contrasted strangely with what was anticipated. A group of men sat piously guarding this sacred fire, for it proved to be that the last rites were being enacted to a kinsman. Among this particular caste the last tribute to the dead is one striking in its solemn originality. When life becomes extinct the body of the deceased, strongly impregnated with the odor of sweet spices, is swathed in the finest linen and permitted to remain a few hours in the midst of the bereaved friends, whose lamentations and strange wailing, as if from another world, are, to say the least appealing. In token of their intense grief each member of the family submits immediately to the operation of having the hair cut off the head. Should it be a widow who is left to mourn, as her sorrow is still greater, her head is completely shaven. These daughters of the east overflow with

CARRSALLEN & BRO
Mirand's Liniment is the Hair Restorer.

John XVII., the Pope of Rome, stood by the duke's side in the apartment where it had been arranged that the marriage ceremony should be performed.

"Ha, ha," said Manfred, as the sound of distant tumult fell upon his ear, "my people are already making merry on the occasion. They shall have a glorious time of it when the marriage is over."

"You have made arrangements for sports, then?"

"No, the prince has made them. I have thought best that Ludovico should please the people this time."

"A wise thought," said the Pope. "It is well to keep them busy with something. Ah—here comes the prince."

Ludovico, accompanied by Hugh de another of the knights, advancing from his companions.

"Alfonso of Modena, is it you?"

"Yes, Manfred," replied the count.

"Then," cried the duke, moving back a step, "to perdition with the whole of you! Down, down, base men—down upon your knees! You are in the presence of the Pope!"

Upon being thus introduced, John XVII. approached, and spread out his arms towards the intruding knights.

"Not now," said Von Brunt, coolly waving the pontiff back. "The presence of the Pope cannot be allowed to interfere with the business we have in hand."

As John moved slowly away, the duke turned and whispered to one of his attendants, who immediately afterwards slipped out by a side door. Von Brunt saw the movement, but he did not see fit to interfere.

"My lord duke," he said, "I once more demand of you the princess Rosabel. If you do not bring her, I shall send for her."

"Wait—wait," replied Manfred. "You shall have your answer soon enough."

Just then the attendant, who had gone out by the side door but a moment before, returned, pale and trembling.

"How now, dog! Where are the guard?"

"Where are the archers?"

"My lord," returned the messenger, quivering more than before, "the guard are all under restraint and the archers are drawn up under command of Michael Totilla, who refuses to obey any order save such as shall come from Frederic Von Brunt."

"By the Lord of Lords!" gasped Manfred, clenching his fists, and stamping upon the floor, "this is some base conspiracy! I'll have my guardsmen here if I have to cut the cordon with my own sword. Stand back, dogs! Stand back, I say!"

"I see we are to have little choice in this matter," said Von Brunt. "Where is Gaspard?"

"Here, Sir Frederic," replied the Saxon esquire, stepping forward.

"Go and call the armorer, and bid him follow you with a score of his men."

As Gaspard went out, the Saxon knight turned again to the duke.

"My Lord Duke of Milan, you shall soon be answered to your satisfaction. If you think it best to try the virtue of your sword, you can have ample accommodation, but I would advise you to remain quiet."

Like a man who moved from some deadly danger unscathed, did the duke stagger back, and rest the point of his sword upon the floor.

Twice had Ludovico started to move forward, and both times had de Castro caught him by the sleeve.

"No, no, my lord," the captain whispered, as he drew the prince back the second time. "I would not oppose them yet. If they seek the princess—which I imagine is some of Alfonso's doing—they will be thwarted at the very moment when they deem their success most sure. Let them do their will."

The prince stood back, for he could not but see that he and his friends were not much to fear for the stout knights of Saxony and Modena.

In a little while Gaspard returned, and with him came Michael Totilla, followed by a score of stout men-at-arms.

"Michael," spoke Von Brunt, moving back a pace, and waving his hand towards the duke and his companions, "secure these gentlemen. They are all your prisoners, save him who wears the vestments of the Pope."

At first both Manfred and Ludovico prepared for resistance, but when they saw how useless such demonstration must be, they surrendered, though with ill grace and with many bitter curses.

When this had been done, Von Brunt turned again to the esquire, who presently introduced into the apartment Hippolita and Cinthia. When de Castro saw his bondswoman with the wife of the armorer, he broke out into a muttering of curses, but no attention was paid to him.

"Now," said Sir Frederic, addressing the women, "we will have the princess. Do you find her and bring her hither."

"By the fiends of darkness!" exclaimed Ludovico, "I think I have a right here!"

"We would have spoken farther, but de Castro plucked him again by the sleeve.

"Keep quiet, my lord," the captain whispered. "Let them bring her if they will. They are only working to their own disappointment. When they have her here they shall find that she is your wife, made so by the Pope himself."

CHAPTER XX.

CONCLUSION.

Rosabel sat alone in her chamber, still clad in her bridal robes; and in her hand she held the dagger, which she had looked upon as her last source of relief from the terrible doom which had been pronounced upon her. It was a fearful thought—the taking of her own life; but she believed God would pardon her for the deed. She sat thus, murmuring a prayer to Heaven, when her door was opened; and upon looking up she beheld Hippolita and Cinthia. The dagger dropped from her hand, and she started to her feet.

"My dear, dear lady," cried Hippolita, seizing the princess by the hand. "O, you must suffer no more. Come you must go with us. We have been sent to bring you into the presence of friends."

"Merciful Heaven!" gasped Rosabel, leaning upon the bondwoman's shoulder for support, "what mean you? Who are my friends?"

"Gaspard of Saxony is here," replied Hippolita; "and Sir Frederic Von Brunt; and Ludwig Eberhard; and Alfonso of Modena. Are not they your friends?"

"Yes—yes," said Rosabel, in a deep, startling whisper. "But is there another? Is there one more?"

"Do you mean Vendorme?"

"Yes."

"He is safe, lady. But—what ails you? Speak—what is it? Are you faint?"

"O! God have mercy!" the princess groaned resting her head upon Hippolita's bosom. "O! my poor, poor life! This is worse than death!"

"What—what, lady? No, no,—you must not fail now. Come—come with us; and all may yet be well. They are friends who wish to see you—friends who are able to help you."

"No, no," murmured Rosabel, in tones of deepest anguish; "for me there is help no more on earth. The hour for help is passed. Had you come just one hour sooner—one poor, short hour—there might have been hope for the power of friendship. But," the princess added, looking up, and trying to stand without assistance, "what is this strange thing which has happened?"

"I don't understand it myself," replied Hippolita; "but perhaps Cinthia can tell you something about it."

"I can tell you this much," said the wife of the armorer: "A little past the hour of noon, while the people were waiting for the announcement of your marriage with the prince, a large cavalcade of knights entered the city by the eastern gate. They were led by Frederic Von Brunt, who seemed to be seconded by the Count of Modena. Whence came their wondrous power I know not; but this I do know, no sooner had they presented themselves to the guards and soldiers than the latter bowed before them, and acknowledged their authority; and thus the very arms upon which the duke might depend for help were turned against him. My husband was called upon, and ordered to take command of the duke's archers, subject to the order of Von Brunt; and Hippolita and myself were ordered to come hither to attend upon the lady Rosabel. There is something very peculiar.

"This very day," said Otho, turning to the princess, who was leaning upon Hippolita for support, "was it of your own free will and accord that you gave your hand to Ludovico?"

"No, no," answered Rosabel, starting up. "I was forced through it all, and not one promise did I make. In my soul, and before Heaven, I am not a wife!"

"But," ventured Ludovico, grasping at the last hope, "his holiness, the Pope, made her my wife, and his holy edict must stand."

"I told you," said Otho, "that I could do more than make and unmake princes. I make and unmake Popes! Base, false man," he continued, turning to John XVII., "your career of vice and infamy is run, and your plots against the Emperor Otho have come to nought. I was in Rome not many days ago, where I cast the conspiring Consul into prison, and deposed you from the pontifical throne."

When the trembling man had been led from the apartment, Otho turned to Rosabel.

"Now, sweet cousin," he said, "you shall wear smiles on your face once more. You are not a wife, for he that professed to marry you was without authority. Still, I think there is one present to whom you would willingly give your hand. Am I not right?"

As he spoke the Emperor had advanced and extended his hand, and as the princess grasped it she bowed her head, murmuring, as she did so:

"Yes, sire. To one who is noble and true have I given my heart and pledged my lasting love."

"It is to Orlando Vendorme?"

"Yes."

"Then the work shall be finished where it has begun, and Manfred and his son shall behold the consummation. Come, Sir Orlando, and let me thus make full payment of the debt I owe thee." He took the hand of the knight, and when he had placed within it the hand of Rosabel of Bergamo, he turned to Gerbert: "Holy father, we await your benediction."

The new-made Pope moved forward, and when he had spoken these magic words which made Orlando Vendorme and Rosabel man and wife, the happy couple knelt before him and received his blessing.

Then, by order of the Emperor, Manfred and Ludovico, and Hugh de Castro, with their immediate attendants, were removed from the apartment, and preparations were made for such a celebration as was fitting to the occasion.

When news was carried to the people that Manfred and Ludovico were in prison, and that Orlando Vendorme had been made ruler in Milan, and that Rosabel of Bergamo had been made his wife, such shouts of joy went up from the old city as had not been heard within its walls for long, long years.

Our story of the Ontcast is told, and we have only to add a few words touching the fates of those with whom we have become acquainted during the recital.

Manfred and Ludovico were removed to Germany, where they both died in prison. Hugh de Castro was liberated on condition that he would leave Milan forever.

Michael Totilla was made captain of the guard, and right well did he fill the office. In time he won a golden spur, and few were the knights who cared to meet with him in the list.

Otho III., crowned Emperor at the age of three years, and crowned King of Rome at the age of fifteen, was one of the wisest and most honorable monarchs of his time. The warm friendship which prompted him to elevate his old tutor, Gerbert, to the papal chair, of Gregory V., was extended to further acts; and during the latter part of his reign, he so extended the power of the Pope, that, in after times, the See of Rome was able to dispute for temporal sovereignty with his imperial successors.

Milan and Bergamo, united under the sway of Orlando and Rosabel, enjoyed a season of prosperity such as was rarely known in Lombardy; for the happy prince, whose home was the abode of so much pure joy, knew well how to make joy for his subjects.

COURTING WITH A FLUTE.

A Method in Use Among the Sioux Tribe of Indians.

Courting by means of the flute is very popular among the Sioux Indians. The flute is made of willow or some other wood that has a bark easily detached, and is usually about a foot in length, and has several perforations through the bark, each of which represents a musical note. The sound produced, though somewhat shrill and life-like, is not unpleasant to the ear. The Indian youth, who desires a wife first mentally fixes his

AN ELOQUENT MONTREALER

How He Sent a Prisoner to a Home That Existed Only in the Lawyer's Imagination

A Canadian barrister named M'Sweeney was a thorough student of human nature, and master of the art of observation. Nothing escaped his notice. While engaged upon a case he watched the jury as a cat watches a mouse, and frequently astonished his clients by ending his arguments very abruptly and submitting the matter to the jury.

"I have known many a case to be talked to death after it had been won," he said. "What is the use of wasting time and breath after the jury is converted to your way of thinking? I believe I can tell when I have my jury well in hand. At that point I stop, no matter in what shape it leaves my speech. I take it that a client employs a lawyer to win his case, and not to display his oratorical abilities."

The peculiarity of the great criminal lawyer was well shown at a murder trial in Montreal a few years ago. Mr. M'Sweeney appeared for the defendant. The State had apparently made out a very clear case against the prisoner. When Mr. M'Sweeney arose to make his address to the jury he carefully avoided any reference to the facts set forth in the evidence or the laws governing them. He pointed out the terrible responsibility resting upon the 12 men who were sitting in judgment upon the life of one of their fellow-citizens. He added that the verdict of guilty would not fall heaviest upon the prisoner, but upon his family. He asked the jury to think for a moment of the effect of an adverse verdict upon the wife and little ones of the prisoner.

Then the lawyer drew a word-picture which was a marvel of rhetorical work. He brought before the eyes of the jurymen the home of the accused man. He showed the patient and loving wife leaving her work to cast many an anxious glance down the road to see if her husband was yet in sight, eager to be the first to catch a glimpse of his figure in the distance, and to have a steaming supper awaiting him on his arrival. He pictured three ruddy-faced children swinging upon the old gate, waiting till papa should come home to them.

At this point the lawyer noticed that one of the jurymen had considerable difficulty in swallowing a large lump which choked him and that there was a suspicious moisture in his eye.

The speaker paused. Turning towards the juror he held out both hands, as a little child might have done to its father, and said in a tone that was scarcely audible:

"Gentlemen, you must send him home to them."

Shifting uneasily in his seat the juror blurted out:

"Yes, we'll do it, too."

"Oh, yes; when I was in England I was enthusiastically received in court circles." She (snippy)—What was the charge against you?—Judge.

He—You saw some old ruins while in England, I presume? She—Yes, indeed! And one of them wanted to marry me.—Brooklyn Life.

Photographing a Battle-ship.

The snap-shot photographer has often demonstrated his effrontery. But it has remained for Mr. O. V. Lang, the photographer of the Union Iron Works in San Francisco, to sight his "finder" and press the button in the face of what looked very like impending death. He was detailed on the 22nd of August, to attend the preliminary trials of the new battle-ship Oregon, and photograph her from all possible points of view that would seem to afford data for theories of wave resistance. Amongst others, a sight from right ahead was wanted, and it was agreed that the photographer's tug should steam across the Oregon's bows at a distance of about 200 yards.

Now it may seem an easy thing to a landsman to calculate distances correctly under such conditions, but seafarers know that it is not so easy as it looks, and Capt. Jansen, of the tug Rockaway, found himself 100 yards too near. The miscalculation was probably due, in part, to the failure of the captain of the Oregon to favor the tug quite enough. At all events, Mr. Lange, camera in hand, was suddenly aware of two great "feathers" of blue Pacific water, backed by the grim iron ram and topmammer of a modern battleship, rushing upon him at a speed of some 20 miles an hour, and close aboard. Capt. Jansen, too, saw the danger, and instinctively did the right thing—namely, rang four bells, and sent the tug ahead for her life. Then there entered into Mr. Lange's artistic soul a sort of photographic berserker's rage. In his own words, "There came a determination to get that picture if it was my last." So the plucky fellow sighted, clicked his shutter, and ran to the nearest stanchion just in time to feel the tug lifted and tossed aside by the great wave that surged away from the Oregon's bow.—Harper's Weekly.

cannot explain. But—come! I think they are waiting for you. Will you not go with us?"

"The hour of help is past for me; but I will go with you. I am ready." And, supported by a dim, shapeless possibility of succor, the princess accompanied the messengers from her chamber.

When the females reached the apartment where the ducal party had been left, they found the knights anxiously waiting for them. Alfonso of Modena stepped quickly forward, and took the princess by the hand.

"Fair cousin," he said, "we have come to help you, and I trust that we are not too late. See I think here comes one whom you can trust."

As he spoke, the princess looked up and saw, advancing from an open door, Orlando Vendorme. But she did not move to meet him. She turned to Hippolyta, and bowed her head upon her shoulder.

"O!" she groaned, "this is dreadful. Let me go to my chamber. I am lost! lost! lost!"

"Death and condemnation!" gasped the duke, when he saw the youthful champion. "Has this dog come back?"

"Ah, Manfred of Milan," said Von Brunt, with a mocking sneer, "you don't see the head of the gallant knight in the place where you expected to see it. But never mind; it is much better as it is, and if you will listen, I will tell you how it has happened. We knights of Saxony, with these noble knights of Wittenberg and of Bavaria, and with the count of Modena and his right noble knights, have had business in this section of Lombardy. This morning, led by a mountain hunter, we came upon a camp of robbers, and were just in season to save the life of Sir Orlando. Our guide had gone on in advance, and when we arrived we found him bound to a tree, while the villains were making ready to cut off the head of our noble knight. We were in season, thank God! and Vendorme is safe."

"Well, sir, and what of all this?" asked the duke, making a powerful effort to stand up like a ruler. "You have come in force, and, by some strange means, gained access to my palace in numbers sufficient to hold me under restraint for a season, but what is it going to benefit you?"

"It may not benefit me at all," replied Von Brunt. "We have come for the benefit of another. We have come to release Rosabel of Bergamo from your base guardianship."

"And perhaps," said Manfred, with a sneer, "you meditate bestowing her hand upon Vendorme?"

"It may be so, my lord duke."

"Ha, ha, ha, you are late this time! You may have been in season to snatch Vendorme from the hands of those who would have executed a righteous sentence upon him, but you are not in season to take Rosabel of Bergamo. She has been married, sir! She is the wife of Ludovico!"

"But she was married against her will."

"She was married by his holiness the Pope, whose edict is sacred above all other earthly things. So now, sir knight of Saxony, you have it."

"I have said all I have to say," returned Von Brunt, "and I will now introduce one who may speak to you with more authority. Gaspard, our master is wanted."

The esquire went out, and in a few moments returned, followed by a fair-haired youth whom we have known as Theodore of Hartburg, and with him came a man of middle age, whose garb bespoke him an officer of holy order.

"Make way for the Emperor!" said Alfonso of Modena, at the same time removing his casque and bowing his head, which example was followed by all the noble knights.

"The Emperor!" gasped Manfred, trembling at every joint.

"The Emperor?" echoed John XVII., turning pale as death.

"Yes," said the smooth-faced youth, standing erect before them, and throwing open his doublet, beneath which, upon his breast, flashed the imperial star of Charlemagne. "I am Otto of Germany. I am he who makes and unmake the princes of Lombardy. Aye, and I am more than that, as you shall see anon. Base tyrant, thou art no longer duke of Milan. When my father gave the scepter into thy hands, he hoped thou wouldst have ruled with justice, but thou hast not done it, and I cast thee out, and the dukedom is no more. To Orlando Vendorme, a just and honorable man, I give the government of this city and its dependencies, and do create him Count of Milan. And furthermore, upon him do I bestow the hand of Rosabel of Bergamo."

"No, no," cried Ludovico, "you cannot do that; Rosabel is my wife."

Manfred's Uttermost Gripe Dandified.

When some peasant evening, he takes his flute and strolls through the village in the direction of the tepee of the maiden's father. He stations himself in a convenient spot, about fifty or sixty yards from her abode, and then drawing the reed from beneath his blanket begins to play a plaintive strain.

While the young man is discoursing these strains the maiden has remained quietly within her father's lodge listening to the serenade with characteristic Italian composure. When it becomes perfectly apparent to the father that his daughter is the object of the musical attention he steps to the end of his wigwam, and, if it is dark, issues forth and cautiously creeps behind the youth and ascertains who he is.

Then he returns to his daughter and makes known his wishes in words something like this:

"Go, my child, he is a worthy Dakota, and will make you a good master." "Or remain, my daughter; he is not a desirable person."

The maiden, in obedience to her parent's wish, advances timidly towards her lover if he is favored, or if the paternal judgment condemn him, withdraws into the dark recess of the tepee. In case the suit is favored and the daughter has gone out to meet the warrior, the young man, upon seeing her approach, gives a triumphant "toot" upon his flute, and then, throwing down the instrument, rushes forward to greet her whom he has so easily won.—American Art Journal.

Ho! for Selby.

A Reduction

Rumors are it that the goddess of fashion on her throne in Paris has decided to reduce the size of the sleeves of women's gowns. The surplus material will, of course, be used elsewhere in the garment, so that no economy will be effected.

Athletic Society Entertainment.

A miscellaneous entertainment will be given in the Opera House, on Thursday, Jan. 10th, 1895, by the Athletic Society of the Collegiate Institute. Miss Louisa Daly in song, and Mr. Woodcock on the Mandolin, are among the attractions promised; and there will be a fancy drill, club swinging, etc., by members of the society. Also a comedietta.

Big Discount Sale.

Mr. C. G. Coxall, Tamworth, has bought the stock of Geo. S. Hinch and added it to his already large stock. This has crowded his store to such an extent that he has decided to throw the whole stock on the market at a discount of from 30 to 40 per cent below former prices, for cash. The stock consists of dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, ready-made clothing, etc.

Officers Elected.

At a regular meeting of Napanee lodge, No. 194, Ancient Order United Workmen, the following officers were elected for the year 1895:—Dr. J. D. Bissonnette, M. W. T. M. Henry, foreman; Robert Webster, overseer; R. L. Henry, Recorder; Wm Dey, financier; T. D. Prunty, Receiver; Nelson Unger, guide; Peter Mair, I. W.; P. M. McCabe, O. W.; Alfred Alexander, P. M. W.; S. R. Miller, Trustee.

Farmers vs. Fakirs.

Farmers are warned to be aware of a swindler who is working his way eastward from Western Ontario. He poses as a bill poster and his plan is to offer a small sum for the exclusive use of the side of a barn or a board fence. He pays for it and induces the owner to sign a receipt which is transformed into a note for $50 to $200, which the astonished farmer is called upon to pay at a bank at which his signature is familiar.

A nice pair of ladies Oxford Shoes, bought from Haines & Lockett would be appreciated as a Christmas gift.

No. 1 A.

The greatest papers in Great Britain and the United States freely acknowledge the wonderful merit of the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal. The Family Herald is a great newspaper and a great family paper, but it is more than that it is one of the greatest authorities in the world on cheese, butter, general dairying, and general farming. How a progressive, up-to-date farmer can do without the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal is hard, indeed, to understand.

Mrs. Coulter Found Guilty and Fined.

At the police court Friday morning judgment was given in the two cases against Alexander Coulter and his wife respectively, charged with fraudulently weighing fowls. Mr. Coulter was honorably acquitted. Mrs. Coulter was found guilty. The magistrate considered the crimes to be very serious. He took into consideration the unblemished record and respectability of the family, and fined her in the one case $53 and in the other $29. Mr. T. J. Campbell is to receive $16 as remuneration for the loss he sustained in the turkey deal.—Belleville Sun.

Died In Harness.

As Mr. Job Sweet, of Richmond township, was returning home on Saturday evening one of his horses dropped down and expired, opposite Baker's corner. It was a valuable animal, about five years old and as it had not exhibited any symptoms of being ill it is hard to account for its sudden demise. The verdict of the coroners jury of willing workers who deposited its remains on a truck to be carted away to the boneyard was, that the immediate cause of its death was heart failure, while one facetious youngster was strongly of the opinion that the animal died for the want of breath.

At Hyman's Altar.

Married, by the Rev. F. B. Stratton, at the residence of the bride's father, Dec.
18th, Levi V. Storms, North Marysburgh, to Effie May, second daughter of Irvine Allison, Esq., of Richmond.

John Wesley Hall and Mrs. Hannah Parks, all of Richmond, were united in wedlock at the residence of the bride, by she Rev. F. B. Stratton, on Dec. 19th.

On Wednesday, the 15th inst., Edward Beasley, of Adolphustown, was united in marriage to Miss Colwell of the same place.
The ceremony was performed in St. Mary Magdalene's church, the Rev. Arthur Jarvis officiating. After the ceremony the happy couple repaired to the home of the groom's step-father, Mr. C. Pollard, Napanee, where a sumptuous repast was in waiting and a number of invited guests assembled. After partaking of the good things provided the company tripped the light fantastic till an early hour and then dispersed to their respective homes with many hearty wishes for the new couples future happiness.

A Frivolous Objection.

Mr. Geo. Goodwin received a notification the other day that Fred Peterson would apply to the Judge, under the Electoral Franchise Act, at the Court House, Napanee, on the 2nd day of January, 1895, to have the said Geo. Goodwin's name struck from off the voters list for the following reason, viz., that his number on the list had been changed. This is about the most frivolous objection we have heard of, for we take it that seldom does it happen that any man's number will fall concurrently on every list. But what in the name of common sense has a man's number on the list got to do with his qualifications as a voter?
This does seem to be an infinitesimal business for a grown up man to be engaged in, but perhaps this is about Mr. Peterson's size and the task is a congenial one to him.
If there any more Reformers in town who like Mr. Goodwin have received notice that their names will be appealed against we hope they will take particular pains to be at the Court House on January 2nd lest on some technicality, under this wonderful Act, they will be disfranchised.

Open Temple.

plars of Temperance, gave a delightful entertainment on Thursday of last week in their lodge rooms over Robinson & Co's.
store. The hall was packed to its utmost capacity and a large number of people had to be turned away. M. S. Madole made a very acceptable chairman and introduced the various numbers in a very pleasant manner. The entertainment was commenced by the singing of the opening ode, after which F. W. Hart gave an instrumental solo in good style. A reading by Fred Arnot was well received. The hit of the evening was a song by Miss Francis Anderson which was greeted with much applause. An address by Allen Oliver, an instrumental solo by Will Stevens, a vocal solo by Miss Dot Smith, a recitation by Miss S. Wagar, a vocal solo by Miss Ruth Harmer and an address by Mr. Dunbar brought an enjoyably evening to a close.
The Rev. Dr. Diarmid, Grand Chaplin of the Order, was expected to be present and deliver an address but owing to unforeseen circumstances he was unable to be present.
The members of the lodge are making arrangements to secure a hall of larger capacity for their next entertainment.

The Globe.

For 50 years The Weekly Globe of Toronto has had an enviable reputation as the one great Liberal weekly of the Dominion.
It has always been a highclass journal, and a welcome visitor in thousands of homes.
It was never better as a newspaper than it is to-day. The Globe's enterprise is proverbial. Its correspondents have traversed and written up almost every section of the country. All great events have been fully reported. The speeches of leading politicians, whether on the floor of Parliament or on the stump, have been presented as they were uttered, and all are fairly treated whether Liberal, Conservative or Patron.
The Globe is the only weekly paper in Canada that gives such full and fair reports of Parliamentary proceedings, great church meetings, and other similar occurrences of Provincial and national interest. Among leading features of recent numbers may be mentioned speeches by Mr. Laurier, Sir
John Thompson, Sir Richard Cartwright,
Mr. Marter, Mr. Haycock, members of the Ontario Cabinet, and others; letters from members of The Globe's editorial staff who travelled through the Province of Quebec and over the route of the Trent Valley Canal, interviews and letters on that most important question, the reform of the law system, long reports from the scene of the Jessie Keith murder, the McWherrel trial, and other sensational events. The aim of The Globe is to be trustworthy. The Globe has the best cable and telegraphic service obtainable; its foreign, American and Canadian despatches are unexcelled, and every week the whole world is brought under review. The agricultural department is right up to the times; the crop and market report are full and reliable.
Reasonable space is given up each week to lighter reading, and good stories is one of The Globe's attractions. Another popular feature are the weekly contributions from the Khan's poetical pen. As a family newspaper The Weekly Globe is unrivalled.

The proprietors of the NAPANEE EXPRESS have made an arrangement with the Globe to club the two papers at the price of one. Leave your order at the office of this paper.

The Mexican President.

As regards personal appearance, Juarez was short in stature, of a powerful frame, with small hands and feet, and with the black eyes, the dark skin, and the strongly marked features of his race. His manner was frank and open, his bearing simple and dignified. Calm and deliberate in all his movements and in all his actions, he ever possessed and displayed the quiet and sustained vigor that belongs to exceptionally strong natures.

Simple in his personal habits, abstemious in eating and drinking, an early riser, needing at all times but little sleep, he blended to an uncommon degree the characteristics of the student with those of the man of action, and he enjoyed a measure of bodily health which is given to few, whether in the library or in the field. Hardy and vigorous, yet disinclined to active exercise; temperate, sober, chaste, he did his work not in the Senate hall, nor on the battle-field, but in the study.—Life of Benito Juarez—U. R. Burke.

Doctor—Ah! I see now what ails you, you have a poor circulation. Country Editor—Great heavens, man! But don't let it out or my paper goes down.—Boston Courier.

Some surprising effects have been recorded from the use of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil in the most desperate cases of consumption. Miller's Emulsion is, "the kind that cures" colds, coughs, bronchitis and lung diseases generally. Every bottle warranted. No oily taste like others. In big bottles, 50, and $1.00, at druggists.

Here is a pointer which shows where farmers may find a new source of income. A man near Lucknow who has a small swamp on his place, shipped 600 evergreens to Buffalo to be used in Christmas decorations, and realize more than half as much as his whole season's crop came to.

A Positive Cure—Burdock Blood Bitters cures all diseases of the blood from a common Pimple to the worst Scrofulous Sores or Ulcers. Skin Diseases, Boils, Blotches and all Blood Humors cannot resist its healing powers.

—Owners of dogs will do well to remember that the Supreme Court has decided that the owner of a dog is responsible for all damage caused by the animal. If he bites anyone, if he barks at horses and causes them to run away, or in any way damages the property of another, damages can be recovered.

A Fatal Attack—A fatal attack of croup is a frequent occurrence among children! Every household should be guarded by keeping Hays's Pectoral Balsam at hand. It breaks up colds, coughs, croup, asthma and bronchitis in a remarkable manner.

Here's a hint for the patrons of the Creamery and of the Cheese Factories. The Scientific American says that in Switzerland a milkmaid or man gets better wages if gifted with a good voice, because it has been discovered that a cow will yield one fifth more milk if soothed during the process of milking by a pleasing melody.

Sound as a dollar—some people are lucky in finding the right remedy at the right time. A case in point follows, and is worth reading. About three months ago I was all used up with rheumatism, suffering more than torture from it. I took three bottles of your valuable medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, and now feel all O. K. Some six years ago I took a few bottles of B. B. and found it the best medicine I had ever used. I had the very best of health until this attack of rheumatism, but now I am glad to say that B. B. has made me as sound as a dollar.
